To Patches, our scrapbook:

You're grown up now, ready to face the world. You'll be introduced to many new people, but you'll also find old friends, some of whom have known you well. It was a pleasant task to bring you up. Yes--many times you were difficult to manage: your size and shape seemed impossible and we were seriously concerned with your general appearance. But then, you were polite and mentioned only that which we had asked you to recite.

I think we have treated you well. There was Arthur who accurately supervised your allowance. Often he hesitated, and consulted Mr. Otis before you were permitted to run away and quickly spend those long awaited pennies. I'll admit, you never spent your money foolishly. Mary made sure that eventually you might meet almost everyone at school. It seemed a little difficult at first, but you know how successful Mary was in organizing your numerous preliminary receptions. Every store in the neighborhood was investigated and by April Evelyn had submitted to you a long list of them. It was easy then to know where one would get the best shoes, the tastiest sodas and the most thrilling books. Except for your best coat John designed and created your wardrobe. After searching for the right kind of material your suits had to be cut and pasted. Marilyn on the other hand showed you how to dress. She and her staff, composed of Eunice France and Barbara Schreyer, designed your jewelry and accessories with artistic taste.

There were also watchful guardians who lent a helping hand wherever it was needed. Mr. Reisman, from the Country Life Press, saw to it that your toilsome journey would be safe and successful. Mr. Davis, our photographer, on the other hand, added to your wardrobe. Although Mr. Gilmartin left Woodmere High a few weeks before you were ready to travel, he had known you long enough to influence you favorably.

Our task is done. We've guided you with loving care and now you're on your own. Good Luck!

A deep-rooted desire to be of service to one's community may well be considered the worthiest of human virtues. To this spirit of service and to the faith in young people which Mr. William A. Wolff exemplified by his life, we gratefully dedicate Patches 1942.

Faculty

MR. C. OGDEN

Mr. Ogden has a big job, that of Superintendent of District 14, but the smooth running school system certainly bears out his efficient way of doing things. Because each student can feel that he is a personal friend, Mr. Ogden is well liked by all in the school.

MR. S. ALLEN

Mr. Allen is the principal of Woodmere High but he doesn't stop at this for he believes in ever going forward. Not only has Mr. Allen introduced many new features, but he also gives a cheering word and many a helping hand to those who need them.

MISS E. DuBOIS

A person whose time is devoted to the interests of each and every pupil is Miss DuBois, our guidance counselor. Through her tireless efforts many are aided in determining their suitability for college or other pursuits. But most of all, "Dubie" is more than an advisor; she is a friend to all.

MRS. H. WHITE

If you see a lady striding down the hall, taking "seven league" steps, you may be sure that it is Mrs. White who is noted for her humorous interpretations of historical happenings from Cleopatra to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Her sympathetic attitude toward all is particularly evident in her position as advisor to the Senior class.

MRS. T. BROWER

Mrs. Brower's time is divided into three parts, which receive the very best attention. Number one, history, two years of it, is taught with the maximum of fervor. Number two, the Bulletin, receives all of her extra time. Mrs. Brower's patience is matched by none. Number three is Elizabeth ("Tookie") her daughter, whose personality, though absent, permeates both one and two.

MRS. J. CURRIE

Mrs. Currie, known as "Mademoiselle," charmingly but firmly rules her classes of French. Not to be forgotten, however, is her excellent guidance in connection with the French Club. Her beauty enchants all the students in "les classes de français."

MR. A. CRICKSHANK

Mr. Crickshank has a certain quiet way about him that commands the respect and admiration of all those who delve into the mysteries of higher mathematics. This gentleman is quite athletic too and his prowess in this field is used to Woodmere's benefit when he coaches the Soccer squad in fall and greatly aids in turning out a fine track team in spring.

Miss W. VICKERY

Miss W. Vickery not only organized girls' gym classes and after-school sports, but because of her excellent sense of humor makes the girls howl with laughter at the recent return of our student body.

Miss L. VAN DER MEID

A lady who reigns supreme in her castle is Miss Van Der Meid, sovereign of the books. Errant knights may storm the fortress with their talk and disturbance, but they are vanquished and down go their names on yonder black list. However, to those who know her, this noble lady is the spirit of friendliness and seems always ready to lend a helping hand to those who need it.

Miss H. VANDER VOLOEN

Miss Vander Volgen, genial head of the school cafeteria, prepares tempting and toothsome tidbits for rain-stranded students and makes cream less desserts and onion less salads for the bonning boys and axiom hater of the faculty (a vocation in itself). Besides, she teaches the gentle and almost forgotten art of cooking (sans can opener, too) to aspiring housewives.

Miss L. MATHEWSON

We really don't know what we would do without Miss Mathewson, our beloved "queen of the fourth floor." Miss "Matty" and ol' Woodmere have been together for over thirty-five years. We sometimes think that she was here first and the school was built around her, so much has she become a part of Woodmere.

Miss A. METZLER

In Miss Metzler's second year English class, King Arthur and his knights leap from the past into the present. So engrossing is her course that the heroes and deeds of today are momentarily overshadowed, truly an accomplishment.

Miss A. MAAS

Miss Maas divides her time between her typewriting and business arithmetic classes. Under her surveillance, "hunt and peckers" and two finger "artists" become accomplished typists, but woe to him who peeks at the keys.

Mr. K. GREGORY

All who are acquainted with Mr. Gregory, manual training and mechanical drawing instructor, know him for his bluff and hearty humor. "Never a dull moment" is his motto. "Greg" also swings a mean ping pong racket.

Mr. M. PLANTAMORA

One of our most colorful teachers, 'tis agreed, is Mr. Plantamura, Woodmere's own rival to Jack Benny. He is living proof of the axiom "all work and no play make 'Mike' a dull boy," a proverb which is carried over to his classes. Notwithstanding this, someone really ought to present him with a new copy of Joe Miller's joke book; his must be quite worn.

Miss M. UNDERHILL

To instill 200 years of American history into the minds of five score Woodmere students is indeed a monumental task. Miss

Faculty

Underhill however, rises admirably to it. By means of a disarming manner, occasional reproach and mild persuasion, she enables Seniors to face June Regents with warranted confidence.

Mrs. A. Phillips

Those who study Spanish have a good time in addition to learning that romantic language. This is attributable to Mrs. Phillips whose striking personality dominates her classes. Occasionally, though, even "Señora's" patience is sorely tried and students must "toe the mark."

Mr. J. C. Waylo

Mr. Cwaylo, who divides his time between freshman English and assisting with the coaching duties of the football squad, has lost two things during this school year, his state of bachelorhood and his appendix. The "frosh" girls didn't mind the latter loss but not so the former.

Miss H. Hass

To most students third year English marks a milestone in their high school career. Much of this is due to Miss Hass who introduces them to the mysteries and delights of essay, poetry, and the theater. Many carry away fond memories of moments spent in Miss Hass' class.

Miss A. Griswold

To the uninitiated, Miss Griswold seems strict on the surface but these soon find out their mistake for Miss Griswold has a natural sense of humor which "crops up" at the most unexpected moments. Then, too, each student goes his way instilled with at least a few of the high ideals which Miss Griswold sets for her students and herself.

Mrs. E. Kieley

Mrs. Kieley has a talent for mixing humor, patience, music, current events, and art with her Caesar, Cicero and Virgil. To those whose taste leans toward Latin, Mrs. Kieley provides an interesting and stimulating course which makes Latin, the dead language, live once more, if only for 45 minutes each day.

Miss H. Schneider

Miss Schneider, though strict at times, has a certain way about her that seems to attract the Freshmen, even to such subjects as Latin and algebra. We think her secret is a smile and a helping hand to those who do their best.

Mr. D. McSweeney

Mr. McSweeney, in addition to coaching the basketball squad and turning out one championship team after another, has charge of the boys' physical education department. "Mac's" ability to win the friendship of his boys combined with his spirit of fair play have won for him the utmost admiration of all.

Mr. H. Otis

Mr. Otis often digs into his vast store of travel tales and general wanderings and comes up with a story that supplants any thought of Civics or Economic Citizenship. Mr. Otis is also credited with putting the "General" in General Motors.

Mrs. F. T. Meade

Though this is only her first year at Woodmere, already Mrs. Meade has an enviable record. Her skillful direction of both the Junior and Senior plays contributed a great deal towards their success. Mrs. Meade teaches English, Public Speaking and Dramatic Arts.

Mr. V. Baltzell

Due to the conscientious efforts of Mr. Baltzell, Woodmere has been turning out a fine crop of students versed not only in the fields of Chemistry and Physics but also in the gentle art of telling jokes, in all three of which Mr. Baltzell excels. Vice is also the coach of W. H. S.'s up and coming football team.

Miss C. Ederer

Miss Ederer instructs her students in business but is more frequently recognized in the senior study hall where her eyes travel up and down the rows like a scythe mowing grain. Woe to the erring student! However, those who take time to really get acquainted with Miss Ederer find her a genuinely friendly person.

Mr. T. Guhmanis

Mr. Guhmanis is one of those all round good sports liked by all with whom he comes in contact. A fine sense of humor comes to a student through the methodical phases of Guhmanis' instruction. A gentleman also ably assists the Freshman basketball team.

Mr. H. Radtke

The things Mr. Radtke has done for the music department are indeed commendable. Out of nothing he has created a fine band that has contributed greatly to the cultural education of the students.

Miss D. Hart

Miss "Tart" Hart, who was formerly a brandt, has established a Woodmere Club as a center of the interests of life. In her record work a fine proportion of budding artists is turned out each year.

Miss E. Pierce

A newcomer to our midst is Miss Pierce who has come in order to handle the impetus of new Spanish students. Already Miss Pierce has proven her mettle.

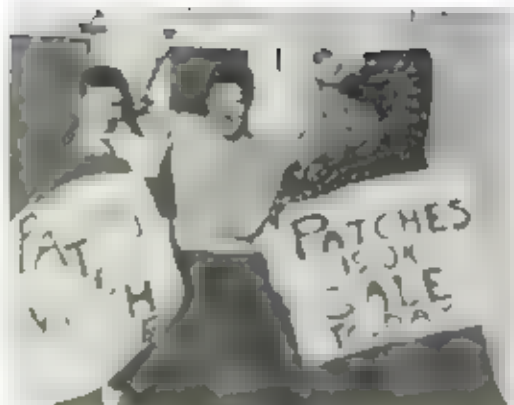

Mrs. G. Terry

Another teacher to join the faculty but recently is Mrs. Terry who is instructor of Senior English. Mrs. Terry's evident capabilities have made her a valuable member of the faculty.

Miss E. Graham

Our memory of Miss Graham is twofold for we enjoyed her riotous English classes in both Freshman and Senior years. Her genial smile and quick humor served to improve further her teachings on our eager minds.

THE MOULD

What time will I be out? It couldn't be later than five o'clock, and yet I am fully awake. Practice maneuvers won't begin for hours. . . . I know our side will win. I can just feel it. This will make the third week in a row for us. Let me see, how many prisoners did we capture last Saturday? Twenty-six, I think. Joseph Kummel was one. I hated to see him beaten and kicked. That's the only part of the fight I can't stand. But I must never tell anyone, not even my Mother. I must learn to strike him as though he were my real enemy, or I will never be a good Nazi. Oh, but I am disgusted with him. A true German would kick his mother in her face. That is what Frau Gruber says. But I am a true German. I love Hitler, our Führer; and I will gladly fight and die for him. The trouble is that I am not hard enough in my heart. . . . Joseph is. I'm sure he could kill me if the leader told him to. He would pretend that I were an Englishman, or an American, or a Jew. That's the best idea. . . . How I would love to kill an Englishman! First, I would stick my bayonet through his belly, and then I would beat him on the head with the end of my gun until he had no more breath in him. Maybe that's too cruel. Those English dogs would never be so kind. But we Germans must try to kill them. They are an inferior race. Somehow I can't even feel sorry for the swine.

They killed Frank! I must not think of him. My throat begins to get lumpy, and I can feel the tears start. Crying does no good. It is childish and unbecoming for a Jungvolk. Hitler's soldiers never cry, and I am going to be his best fighter. I will be as brave and strong and smart, that the Führer himself will compliment me. That will be the greatest day of my life! The weather will be clear and cool, and thousands of our people will be watching. I will be standing in the ranks, and then my name will be called. I shall step forward, and . . . but this is all foolish dreaming. I must keep my mind free from any selfish desires. Such thoughts are unworthy of a German. Americans think like that, only they want money, that's why America is losing the war. Americans were so busy making money that they didn't care about their government. Now they have something called democracy. I can't figure out exactly what that is, but it seems dreadful. How they will destroy us!

Oh, the sun is coming up. What a fine day! There is nothing on earth so beautiful as German land with the morning sunlight shining upon it. This must be what Frau Gruber means when she says "Holy German soil." This is what our great leader, Adolf Hitler, saved for his people. Oh, let me grow large, and strong, and fearless, so that I may fight for our Führer; so that I may die for Hitler and for my life to the glorious Nazi Cause.

For the first time in our history we started at the end of the school year. No one would have thought of walking down the street in the winter and seeing the snow. We were all so used to the warm weather that we were all surprised to see the snow.

The Rising Sun

by Gilbert Kinchen '44

Although Philip Carter was American he had long been an unofficial member of the British Intelligence Office. When he found himself in the fallen town of Malacca on the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula Carter realized his one chance for escape was to go to his hidden boat and to attempt to cross the Straits of Malacca to the Island of Rupa, off the Sumatra mainland.

Carter knew this fact so he left his hiding place on the outskirts of town, bade his Malayan friend, who had hidden him, goodbye, and disguised as a native, plunged into the jungle.

After a short walk through the jungle, which seemed to take hours, Carter emerged onto a beach. There was an old wharf on the beach and Carter, watching on his flashlight, crept out of the night into a concealed cave under the dock.

The cave was about twenty feet long, pitch black, and contained a small motorboat. Carter walked to the very back to get some cans of food. He was suddenly startled by a voice from the entrance of the cave and in dropping his flashlight he dropped the light and the cans into the canal which ran through the cave. Carter winced as he recognized the voice, for standing at the entrance of the cave was the German spy, Kluger, whom Carter had almost captured.

Kluger spoke in almost perfect English, "Surprised, Carter?" he asked.

Carter remained silent.

"You can talk, Carter," he said. "Do not worry, I won't shoot at the sound of your voice. This place is full of truck and I would be a waste of bullets. Maybe you would like me to come with you? I am not so stupid. I will not chance having you jump on me. I had I dropped my flashlight in the jungle. Now I have to wait until sunrise when enough light will filter in for me to see you so I can shoot you. I wait, Carter. Do not come near me. The moon provides enough light for a little. If you come too close I'll shoot you now, but I won't make me do that. I won't be able to see you again."

Carter still did not answer.

The German continued mocking him. "Carter? Do you know I could have had the Japanese shoot you, but I wanted you for my self."

Carter spoke at last, "If I had something to throw at you . . ."

For the first time the Nazi spoke with contempt, "Yes, Carter. I have the moonlight and you can see me, but your only missiles were the light and cans and you dropped those. Carter, Carter, I expect to use five bullets on you. I used only one on your Malayan friend, and so I would have five left for you."

At that Carter jumped.

The German spoke in a voice resembling the sound of a snake crawling through grass, "Carter, I am going to give you a chance. I am a sporting man. I will let you walk five feet before I blow your head off in the morning."

Carter at last played his hand. "Listen, Kluger," he said. "You're a betting man. Let us make some type of wager. If I win give me my life. I'll tell you where there is gold in town. If you don't find it the Japanese will and I hate them as much as you.

"Hah," bellowed Kluger. "The gold has already been found, but to show you that I am a sporting man I will make a bet with you. If the sun does not rise in the morning, you can have your life.

There is a luminous clock in the dashboard of the boat, Kluger said Carter.

Kluger answered, "How convenient. Thank you, Carter. In twenty minutes it will be five and sunrise."

The minutes rolled by and at five Kluger laughed a hysterical laugh and said, "It will be cloudy today. That is why there is no sign of the sun yet.

Carter's reply was simply, "You're wrong, Kluger. The sun won't come out."

Ten minutes passed and Carter repeated, "See, Kluger? It won't come out."

This time Kluger's laugh was feeble.

Another three minutes and Kluger had developed a bad case of nerves. "Stop it, Carter," he said.

Carter droned on louder. "The sun won't come up. It won't come up."

Ten minutes and the German realized that Carter was shattering his nerves with a single phrase. Kluger poured three shots into the tank. He heard Carter say, "See, Kluger, you realize it even if you don't admit it. The sun won't come up."

Kluger flew into a rage. Carter saw two more gun flashes, a rush of blackness, and then he heard a groan.

Carter knew Kluger had fired all five shots and so he walked forward saying, "All right, Kluger. Now I've got you."

There was no answer.

Carter was about to speak again when he tripped over something. He bent down and saw that he had fallen over Kluger, or what had been Kluger. Kluger was dead, still warm but quite dead. In his frenzy the Nazi had tripped accidentally and shot himself. Carter lay panting for a full twenty minutes. Then he jumped into the motor boat, turned the ignition and in ten minutes had coaxed the motor to life. As he eased the boat down the canal he murmured to himself,

"That clock hasn't been used in two months. It is at least two hours fast. For the first time I am glad that this clock does not work well and gains an hour a month. Well, it is just what these Germans will all get if they stake too much faith in the Rising Sun."

DUSK

I think as I watch the even draw nigh
How symbolical it is of the millions who die
It seems, as the sun fades from mortal view,
That the night with the light is disappearing too

I like to think as the dawn draws nigh
As the splendor of Aps to GPs the eastern sky,
That the night with the light is coming again
To the war-torn world and wretched men

I like to think while the day is still here
We should value our privilege of freedom from fear
And while we have light, we have work to go about,
For now we must keep the lights from all going out

NOCTURNE

The heartless hunter with his gun of hate
Marks the tranquil, unstartled dove
Then, heedless, blasts the cooing bird
And lets it lay

The luernt white is drenched by blackened blood
And left to rot by killer bold
Who stalks right on
For bigger prey

Joyce Butler

NOCTURNE

Rajah Night the moonset on from on turban slips;
The jewelled belt at his waist is loose
And so, majesty to bolster'd lounge retires

Clashed brass of music retreating
Scented sweet smoke of incense
Winged lanterns flick velvet highways
On which tiger lilies scent
Touching not
Lolita weeps for space-thwarted lovers
Who by eye-light flirt,
As Death games with Life in moon-scape gardens,
And praying winds pierce Towers of Silence

Touching, yet not touching, vacuum dreams retreat
As Dusk, with petalled gentleness, rustles the passions of sleep

Soccer

With only a few veterans returning, the soccer team, which was picked from among the intramural stars, played two hard fought games during this season. The first game saw Woodmere bow to its neighborhood rival, Woodmere Academy, by a score of 1-0. The season may be considered a success, however, because the team managed to fight a strong Baldwin to a standstill. In this game, Robert Lee's goal was nullified by a last minute Baldwin score and so the game ended in a 1-1 tie. Veterans Louis Levine, George Mont, Horst Wallenstein, and Captain Wesley France stormed along with Patty Norton, Richard Alexander, David Schlang and diminutive Robert Pearson. Many of the boys will be back next year, which should be one of the best seasons.

Hockey

As we donned our gym suits that day there was a definite air of remorse about the Seniors for it was their last day of practice. When we reached the field we saw that the Freshmen and Sophomores were scrimmaging, so some of us wandered over to Barak's. Over "cakes" we happily reminisced; we recalled the highly exciting and enjoyable games with Central, East Rockaway and Lynbrook; the keen inter-class battles with the Seniors finally coming out on top with a hard fought for victory and the Honor Team Play Day at Adelphi College where Woodmere met and defeated Mineola, and Babylon, and where Jane Wolbarst was given a Class "A" rating. It was the consensus of opinion that Woodmere's Hockey Honor Team of 1941 was one of the finest we've produced in many years.

The Honor Team was composed of the following girls: Dorothy Bailey, Elaine Candell, Dawne Einhorn, Eunice France, Martlyn Fried, Vivien Green, Flora Hoffmann, Edleen Hyman, Dorothy Liphay, Gisela Petersen, Judith Rodnick, Helene Rosenfeld, Jane Strauss, Jane Wolbarst.

Basketball

The favorite winter sport for girls as well as boys is basketball. Any day, except Friday, we could find the girls vigorously exclaiming 'Shoot it up' 'Pivot' 'Pass it back' while playing at either the Franklin School gym or at Woodmere's gym. When the class teams were finally chosen we all looked forward to the inter-school games scheduled with South Side, Lawrence and Oceanside. Although we didn't fare too well in these inter-school games we thoroughly enjoyed them. Then came the inter-class playoffs. I don't believe the Juniors or Seniors will ever forget their game which the Juniors won after a terrific fight. Everyone eagerly looked forward to Play Day, which this year was held at Lynbrook. Woodmere played Lynbrook, East Rockaway and Mepham and although we can't boast of a sweeping victory we did have fun.

Art Club

'Thank heavens' I finished my clay mask! I worked on it all term and Miss Hart, our faculty advisor, even said that it was good!

In the fall, we put on a very successful assembly program, much to everyone's amusement. Marilyn Goodman and Barbara Schreyer entertained the audience with their wonderful caricatures. I wish that I was as good an artist as Barbara is. She's been president of the club for two years—since the club has been organized. Gloria Hall is our vice president and Jane Rasmussen is our secretary.

You'd be surprised how much wonderful work we've done. Besides making pins, masks, wastepaper baskets, and bookends, we were very patriotic and did posters for Red Cross and Defense.

We've all worked very hard this year and are all ready to meet next year with a bang.

Assembly Chairman

This year, for the first time in Woodmere High School, students were given important responsibility in the assembly program at Woodmere. Every week, a committee of students was appointed to plan the assembly. The committee was made up of students from the following classes: Sophomores—Sylvia Schwartz, Marilyn Lind, Susan Bauer, Joan Henning, Carol Jones; Juniors—Lillian Gross, Mary Frances Kinn, Arthur Han, Nancy Alice Lee, Susan; Seniors—Doris Goldstein, Lucile Wolf, Brett Welland.

There was created the job formerly held by the principal, concerning the guidance and management of the weekly assembly programs. These students were given the opportunity to enhance their speaking power by leading the salute to the flag, making announcements, introducing speakers, and anything therein connected.

There is no doubt about the beneficial features of this plan, and because of the good piece of work already done by the committee, the assembly program at Woodmere High School is now a success.

Astorian Society

The Astorian Society, which meets in room 30 always afforded me such food for speculative thought. If I was bold enough to glance through the foreboding door, I would see printed on the front blackboard scores of names followed by "code letters" such as A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z. I knew nothing about these intriguing sessions other than that they were conducted by the board of the Astorian Society.

One day, when I was in the room, I learned that the Astorian Society had elected to membership various students whom they and the faculty judged to be outstanding in both character and service. The only requirement for consideration is a scholastic average of eighty-five per cent or over. I discovered that who is a student has

The Red Cross Club

As I walked into room 20 the other day, to complete my forgotten homework, whom should I see? My great surprise, I saw Marcia Samuels and Joan Korman, energetically knitting away, occasionally dropping a stitch or two. Gazing about the room, I could see the knitting of bright patches and long scarfs. In another corner of the room could be seen swarms of girls debating as to the best way in which to collect more money for the Red Cross drive. Running towards me came Patsey Hatry and Joyce Bakal, to interrupt me in the middle of my X's and Y's to ask me to buy a ticket to their Red Cross Patriotic Dance, which they said was sponsoring.

shape. Woodmere succeeded in capturing eight contests before Lawrence again stopped them. Undaunted Woodmere bounced back to take the remaining games and the Class II South Shore Championship, being undefeated in league play.

After the defeat of South Side in the league playoffs Woodmere entered the Nassau County Sectional Tournament and defeated Garden City in the opening round by a record breaking 60-34 score. These two grueling playoff games had taken the best basketball Woodmere had. When they faced South Side again in the sectional round they didn't have enough left to win. Although they played a tough snappy game the finish was lacking and South Side won 46-34 by a third period rally.

Led by ambidextrous Mike Healy who gained over 220 points, the Woodmeres quintet scored over 670 points, one of the highest point totals. The tall forward did not go unaided in his point getting activities. Bill Strickland and Al Ojewicz also chimed in with over 100 points each. Husky Al Neugebauer contributed another century mark, while the ever present Lou Camassa capped a timely shot now and then to fill out the total.

Defensively Woodmere was shown the way by Al Ojewicz, the iron man, snappy Lou Camassa, and speedy Bill Strickland. Under the basket Al Neugebauer and lanky Mike Healy skilfully handled the rebounds to give a good account of Woodmere's ability.

Backing up these stellar starters was a group of fine reserves. Harry Millard, who started out the season as a guard, lost his starting position to Earl Weiss. Earl returned as an able replacement at center. Larry Rosenbaum and Dick Fynke were the firemen at the guard posts, while tall Arthur Rau and taller Jacques Misul stilted as the forwards.

Activities Board

Every Thursday morning at 8:00 I met my sleepy-eyed colleagues in Miss Dullon's room to plan the student activities. I managed to stifle that yawn when I saw the work before me. There were the assembly programs which had not been planned and the Student Handbook had to be finished.

The Activities Board is composed of a representative from each class and each club. This year we re-established dancing in the gym once a week—that's one thing I wouldn't miss for all the time in China.

The Activities Board also planned a program for the P.T.A. to show our parents the accomplishments of the various clubs. A scrapbook was compiled of all important events and assemblies during the year. Gosh, when I think of all we accomplished, it was worth getting up at the crack of dawn!

The officers are President, Jane Strauss, Vice President, Barbara Sawyer; and Secretary, Joy Wilner.

Footlighters

Curtain going down! The Dramatic Club has just completed its fourth year at Woodmere. The cast was directed by Mrs. Meade, and was composed of a large number of stage-struck thespians.

Carol Schlos was good in the leading role. Ruth Lee excelled as the ingenue secretary. Mary Gulligan portrayed the bustling business woman in true perfection. Marilyn Fried, Doris Goldstein, Lola Mirin, and many others were fine in minor parts.

The play was a huge success, and even though many stars will not be present next year, we are happy to announce, "On with the show!"

Spanish Club

"Habrá una sesión del Circulo Español, hoy!" This notice on the blackboard of Mrs. Phillips' room never failed to attract a great number of the Spanish-speaking students of our school. This year—with relations as they are with all of Latin America—was a banner one for the Spanish Club. The President, Marvin Lebusky, together with the Vice President, Elaine Kamins, and the faculty advisor, Mrs. Phillips, did a fine job in the managing of this club. This year, El Circulo Español was one of the most popular and successful clubs in our school.

The feature attractions for members were the many excellent and oft-times amusing plays performed by the "socios" (members). Of course, songs, games and stories—entirely in Spanish—were highlights of every meeting. Slides and motion pictures are viewed with interest by the members. These tended to increase our interest in our southern neighbors as well as heighten our cultural knowledge of New Spain.

However, the main accomplishment of the club was to teach all of its members to speak Spanish fluently and to use the language practically. All business is conducted strictly in "español" and it is amazing to see how much can be accomplished in a strange tongue.

By the way, have you seen the new Spanish club pins? The purchase of the same was one of the highlights of the year for us. These are good looking pins for a hard working club!

Motion Picture Operators

fairly jumped with joy. The motion picture operators, who run the films during class presentations, are composed of 12 boys under the leadership of Mr. Pantamura. Daniel Spiegel and Charles Imersheim can always be found in the projection room having loads of fun. All the boys are trained in the workings of the camera and on the rare occasions when the machine becomes temperamental, they usually fix it with skill.

The one mystery is the whereabouts of Bob Schaffer and the camera on a certain Friday morning. No one yet seems to know. Members are Daniel Spiegel, Charles Imersheim, Willard Greenwald, Elliot Cohen, Dick Fynke, Robert Schaffer, William Stein, Robert Steinberg, Matthew Lesser, Elliot Doff, David Schlang, and Edward Powsner.

International Relations Club

I remember well the day I was admitted to the International Relations Club. How I had slaved over that letter of application! What would I add to the club? I knew what the club would add to me. Every Thursday twenty of the more intellectual Seniors (and a few Juniors sprinkled in) gather in Miss Underhill's room for heated discussions concerning this hectic world and its affairs. Miss Underhill referees and keeps the tight spots with her ever bubbling fountain of knowledge.

This year the club held a contest to raise money for pictures. I only guessed twenty of the pictures of famous personages and was most envious of the more successful students. The club also sponsored a motion picture and the turnout was overwhelming.

I always stopped in front of the bulletin board to read the head lines and the humorous cartoons which were tacked up daily by the enterprising members. Now you see why I am souffed up with pride because I am a full fledged member of the International Relations Club.

The officers are President, James Weinstein, Vice President, Jan Stein, Secretary, Walter; Treasurer, full semester, Elaine Candell, and spring semester, Ruth Lee.

Glee Club

My school study is always disrupted by the melodious Glee Club. Although it proves rather disconcerting to an industrious student the Glee Club is really a fine organization. Under the direction of Miss Solomon, this all girl club gave an excellent assembly program which I enjoyed immensely. Glee Club is now headed by Miss Dolan. Miss Dolan, who is now in charge, is continuing Miss Solomon's good work. I'm sure I'll see the names of some of our Glee Club members shining in bright lights some day.

Woodmere Wizards

"Prato, change, magnifico." Can we do it? Yeah, man! Meeting weekly in Miss Metzler's room is the Magic Club, headed by "Swami" Lee. Other dealers in wizardry are David Egart, Ruth Hoffman, Donald Dube, June Engelhardt, to mention but a few. No doubt you have often heard the saying, "The hand is quicker than the eye." There you have it as well as that of other magicians. Around December, it is the yearly practice of our club to present a magic show in assembly, and this year was no exception.

SPECIAL ISSUE

WHAT'S WHAT

Most of the people in school see only the finished product when the Bulletin comes out on a Friday morning. They don't realize how much "blood, sweat and tears" are behind its mimeographed pages.

About a week and a half before the paper comes out, the news editor, after consulting with the editor in chief, hands out assignments to her reporters. The first of the write-ups usually arrives on Mrs. Brower's desk the Friday before publication and the rewrite staff begins "blue penciling": adding, subtracting, or changing whatever is necessary. On Monday, one of the copy editors takes the stencils and puts the familiar Woodmere Bulletin heading on the masthead. Meanwhile the copy editors continue to work on the stories and it is with these that the editors paste up the copy sheets on the back of the paper. When this preliminary work is completed it is sent to the typists to be typed. After these are revised, the associate editors put appropriate headlines on each story and when the rewrite staff finds everything perfect the stencils are sent to the mimeographer. When they come back, the pages are assembled and stapled on Thursday night and the circulation manager delivers them to the subscribers' homes. Finally, on Friday morning, you hear the familiar cry of "Circle Woodmere Bulletin here."

It is the editor in chief's executive ability which keeps all the departments coordinated and it is his job to plan everything and that has plans as follows:

WHO'S WHO

Starting its sixth year, the Woodmere Bulletin sported a new department, the rewrite staff. This department increased the accuracy of the reporting and publishing of the paper. This reform was the brainchild of Editor in Chief Abbott Losh and took some of the burden off the capable shoulders of Mrs. Brower, club sports editor.

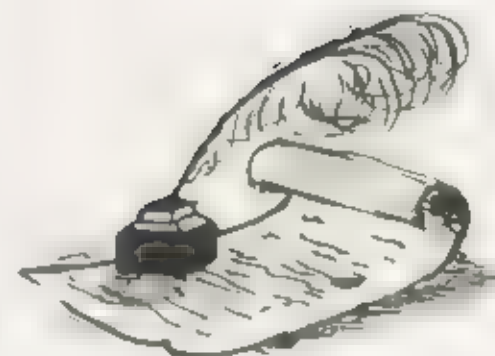

Another needed addition was the managing editor's post, filled by Richard Hirsch, whose duty it was to handle the "books" and other business. The associate editors, Willard Greenwald and Daniel

It was a busy day.

Patches

As winter took its toll, Patches has been completed. Rewarding because we have enjoyed our work and have experienced the satisfaction that a finished job generates in those who have built the book. And there were many of us, indeed some of us had specifically offered their work if wherever help was needed. Both a most successful project. Although we did not believe in deadlines, the dreaded yet relaxing day arrived. What will the Patches offer be like without rubber cement? How will it hold together without the help of copy sheets? These, a colorful jingle and historical envelopes (the latter being addressed to Mr. Davis) on the bulletin board provided enough material for an expert job of interior decoration. The desk alone deserves a character sketch. It patiently carried piles of activities writeups, which have been edited by Joyce Walner. Everett Kline's faculty writings lay there too, neatly wrapped up in an envelope, and behind the typewriter we could find either Ruth Berger or Peggy Walsh. Even if you were on the other side of the door you could distinctly hear Harry Bloch, who celebrates his third and last year as Sports Editor. In the Patches office itself, Vern Bloch is trying to solve the mystery of how many pages this issue will count. Although the number of pages is yet indefinite, we hope that you will enjoy reading every bit of it.

Band

With a scraping of chairs and a tapping of the baton, the Woodmere High School Band comes to order. It is 8:30 a. m. and Band officially started, but for ten minutes more latecomers filter in. The rehearsal moves along smoothly until a loud sour note from the trumpet section draws a tongue lashing from the clarinets. The hassle is on. The cornetists get their opportunity when some unwitting clarinetist emits an eerie screech. The cheerful banter is exchanged until Mr. Schultz, our new band leader, restores order. Mr. Schultz assumed leadership of the band when Mr. Radtke left to take his place in the Army. Mr. Schultz is continuing with the same routine, but he has successfully changed the style of the band.

The ultimate goal of all this practicing is the assembly program which is presented semi-annually. On these occasions the members of the band vest themselves in their crisp-looking blue and white uniforms. These aren't the only times, however, that the band appears in public. They often provide music between the acts of the Junior and Senior plays. They were also present at the opening of the Lynn Place extension where they took part in an impressive ceremony. We hope, too, to have the band play at our football games.

Musical Arts Club

As I walked past the music room on Wednesday afternoon, I saw a group of industrious students talking intently. I was informed that this was the new Musical Arts Club. The members were planning a contest to be held on Wednesday afternoon, February 18.

Not to be outdone, I paid my nickel on the above date and wracked my brains to identify the tunes played on records. Alas, my efforts were in vain as a Freshman, Barbara Rouse was the

Camera Club

This was my first year in the Camera Club, and I certainly learned a few things about cameras and such. The first meeting of the club was a mystery to me as I knew none of the camera lingo that my confreres were throwing around with the ease of a Dodger fan. The meeting was called to order, and the officers for the year were elected: John Arbib, president, Elliot Doff, vice-president, Elliot Cohen, secretary, and Joseph Schwartz, treasurer. After the election, Mr. Baltzell, the faculty advisor (and baby photography expert), suggested that we plan for the future meetings.

It seems that there were many things to be done, and so little time in which to do them. As a result, the club decided that for a major project it would plan and create a movie of 200 or 300 feet.

Before starting the movie, however, something had to be done about members like me who had to learn the "ropes" of photographic technique. Lectures, illustrated with slides and movies were then given by the older members of the club concerning all phases of photography. Soon I was talking about "soup," "hypo," "shutterbugs," and such with amazing facility. Now I'm a confirmed Camera Bug!

Shorthand Club

Oh! Thursday afternoon, the Shorthand Club meeting has been opened, the formalities of minutes by Gloria Boas and Activities Board report by Florence Franke have been completed; and now we will take dictation. Now, girls, please be still while I dictate from the "Gregg Writer," so that you can get the gist of the matter. Everybody settles down to listen to Miss Matty's majestic voice, that can be heard above the clanging of forty typewriters at once. When their dictation is up to par, Dot Luke, the captivating

Track

At this writing, prospects for a successful track campaign are bright. Although the Otis and Crosswink teams met together for training purposes, there were not less than a few athletes among the candidates who reported for the season's first session.

Pete Kamins leads the sprinters to the mark and is the only leader from last year's crack relay team, which captured the SSAT championship. Dick Hirsch and Bill Dinan are other returning dashers who will account for several points. Ed Hendrickson will anchor the four quarter mile and Alex Hilly who hit 10' 3" last season, doubles in the pole vault and high jump. Charley Newman is on deck for the broad jump. Tim Plonsky and Lou Bick will be ready to take the mile.

Harry Beaudouin, another outstanding character will anchor the mile and will also anchor the relay team. The team will also have a few other athletes who will be ready to take the mile.

tackle, succeeds the departed Art Glaas in the shot put and has already exhibited considerable promise. Dominative Lou Camassa, last year's surprise package, is a cinch to garner a number of first places in the mile.

Allen Smith, who enlisted in the Navy on December eighth and went down with the destroyer Leah, was always an early captain by the boys with whom he once ran. Allen was an all-around athlete and was an important figure in this season's plans. More than a few will be ready to take the mile.

times we changed! Last year parents drove cars while Juniors rode bikes. This year Mama calls for little sister via bicycle.

Of course, though the 1942 was crammed with adventure and excitement. The highlight of the memorable year was the Junior play, which after six weeks of extensive training was given under the able direction of Mrs. Meade. Naturally, the facts that Margy Sprinz almost had to be put in a straight jacket to convince her to stand erect, and that James Link had to be handcuffed to keep that bounding rubber ball of energy quiet, were quite forgotten when Jay Maisel, as Papa Kalness, influenced many of the daddies in the audience to be "good". Vivienne Green's portrayal of Mania Kalness certainly touched the hearts of all. The Junior Play did indeed spell excitement "deluxe" for everyone.

And now my Junior year has ended and time has been annihilated. On the precipice of my Senior year I stand. May it hold for all Juniors, good luck, health, and happiness.

Sophomore Class

treasurer? Why do we so tactfully omit the names of those who dare to torture us by being in the band? Why doesn't Peter Kamins worry about getting out of a "tight fix" as long as he has room to run?

Looking back on some of the misfortune we caused our teachers, we think of poor Miss Griswold trying to show why a rectangular circle is square, Miss Metzler showing the "why's and wherefore's" of Jacob Rux and dear beloved Silas M., Miss Williams reviewing the strange antics of those "cute" Roman emperors to sleep-drugged students in 8:00 A.M. Regents review classes.

If anyone asked us what we remembered about those literary languages, Latin, French, and Spanish, we would look bright, and say in our best Yankee pronunciation: Mrs. Kielty's "Omnēs Gallia est divisa in tres partes" or, more probably, "Veni, Vidi, Vici (1, 2, 3 kick for the conga fans). Expanding our chests further, we would spout importantly Miss Moser's sad tale beginning "Pierre De sac est un petit garçon." To complete our application for a medal of honor we would quote Señora's "se habla espanol". Having thoroughly astounded our questioner who would immediately go to look for a language dictionary, we would turn to another subject.

Before ending this tribute to the sophomores, we must add with faces reddened by shame the doleful tale of the magazine salesmen. Excluding only a few, the salesmanlike features of our members were almost smothered by the first door that was closed firmly before them. What a pity!

But where there's life there's hope and we're looking forward to being bigger and better Juniors!

Civics class? (Not you! & the three Eileens!!) For the Jays especially, always "pop" up with laughter-provoking questions. Some of our rookies belong to the Air Corps for they seem to know so much about plane handling and construction. Who knows, one might be destined as a future "Curtiss-Wright" president.

Among those helping us to reach our goals are "Sentry" Schneider, keeping one watchful eye on the halls, and the other on her Latin and Algebra classes and Mr. Cmaylo, who teaches us to mind our Particples and Quotations.

been selected for three consecutive quarters, he is awarded a gold pin by the Parent Teacher Association.

Besides being an honorary organization, the Asterean Society has presented several interesting assembly programs. This year, I remember in particular the adaptation of "Truth or Consequences," which they presented in November.

The present members of the Society are: President, Jane Strauss; Secretary, Vera Bloch; Gene Bokor, Marilyn Goodman, Albert Ojewicz, Ruth Lee, Stephen Schwartz, Sydney LeBrun, Janice Mills, Walter Zochfeld, and Daniel Spiegel.

special dance contests and featured attractions. Due to their excellent salesmanship I was persuaded to bring my best girl with me. After several minutes of peace, Jane Strauss could be heard reading letters from the Wavecrest Convalescent Home, thanking the club members for the party place cards which the children had enjoyed so much. Upon completing this letter, Peggy Walsh and Terese Galligan volunteered to attend a Red Cross Delegate Meeting. Having finished my algebra, (believe it or not) I walked out of the room leaving behind me the Red Cross Club to continue its endless work.

Luskind, could usually be seen commuting between Mrs. Brower's room and the fourth floor office ("Seventh Heaven") while handling their headlining and "make-up" jobs. An excellent piece of work was turned in this year by the capable typists: Dorothy Luke, Alberta Ojewicz, Florence Fitzpatrick, Faith Berger and Peggy Walsh. Bill Strauss and his mimeographers also helped greatly in rendering a neat issue to be distributed by John Arbib and Elliot Doff.

On the editorial staff, Sylvia Kohn and her reporters, notably Carolyn Goldsmith, Carol Werner, Jeanne Frank, Marilyn Bloom, and Carol Greifer covered the important school events, while Sports Editors Harry Beaudouin and Jane Strauss covered athletics. The rewrite staff consisted of Edward Kane, Marvin Lebofsky, Sylvia Daniels, Ruth Lee, Lester Greenberg, and Manager Stephen Schwartz. Jean Hennig and Hazel Brown collected information for "Alumni Notes" and "Seniors on Parade."

winner. The coveted prize was two tickets to "Porgy and Bess."

Soon after this event a dark cloud descended upon the Club. Mr. Radtke was called to serve his country and the Music Club's activities were curtailed. I'm sure that such a worthwhile club will continue, nevertheless. I certainly hope so!

President, calls on Louise Seaman to start translating a letter from the "Gregg Writer." Rosella Planthaber is the next victim to plow through, and is followed by Dotty Bailey, who thinks it would have been more sensible to read it in English rather than go through all this trouble.

Since the coming week is Halloween and one that deserves celebrating, interest then swings over to what kind of cake Vivian Kelly will bring and who is going to bring the latest Glenn Miller record for the fourth floor victrola dance session, as the fourth floor will be out alone for the coming holiday. Before ideas run rampant, Miss Molly quells those culprits down and closes the meeting by interpreting the jokes from the "Gregg Writer," which appeal to her, but which seem out-moded to the rest.

Assuming that you have determined to adopt the career of Pharmacy (and you will if you are wise) your next problem is to select the college where you will earn the coveted degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy.

Here at the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy you will find the 11th convention of the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education. It is a convention which by every means of transportation an independent highway runs to the corner. It is a convention which is equal to boys and girls. It is a convention which is Accredited by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education. It has a fully equipped gymnasium and a photographic dark room—and an excellent and a student-run college paper—and a Dramatic Society—and a College Student Council supervising matters affecting the school—and every other amenity of the college system. It is a building to the most modern and complete assemblage of laboratory and scientific equipment.

Come over and inspect these facilities. Learn about them at first hand. Experience the ease of reaching the conveniently located Brooklyn College of Pharmacy. You will leave here thoroughly impressed and fully convinced that HERE is the place to start a lucrative career in the field of pharmacy. When may we expect you?

You are invited to call at the college to discuss your individual plans with Dean H. H. Schaefer.
